A Brief History

Paloma Consulting Limited's key staff have been full time Lean and Six Sigma consultants since 1997 and were certified as Master Black Belts in 1998.

In the last 10 years our constant drive for successful return on investment for our clients has seen the company enter numbers of widely differing sectors, usually as a result of recommendations from past clients.

Paloma started in the engineering electronics, automotive sectors, and later the aerospace and chemicals sectors where forward looking companies already had a strong continuous improvement mindset and were open to lean thinking and the discipline of six sigma. Those companies then became interested in our applications for projects in office environments. We then entered the financial services markets, concentrating in insurance and banking.

Since 2005 we have been using our expertise helping retail and logistics companies and working with local government boroughs. We have also helped lifestyle brands and a national newspaper.

Over the last 10 years our office based lean and six sigma projects have grown to 45% of over 1000 completed projects.

We haven't forgotten about manufacturing industry though and in 2007 we have been helping a European nuclear submarine manufacturer use lean and six sigma techniques in long cycle time manufacturing.
